Media Guide

Background

Over the past several months, the MAT team, in close consultation with Posts and Media Hubs has been working to prepare the MAT system to meet the media data collection needs of the general PAS population across the globe and the Hubs. The new MAT release includes several enhancements to media data collection in response to the feedback received. The My Post page now provides individual users with the capability to manage local media outlets. Users are no longer required to email MAT info to update local media outlets. Also, shortly after this release, several updates to media activity questions intended to improve the quality of the data collected and to move us towards the long-term goal of integrating Media Hub reporting into MAT will be included.

I. Managing Media Outlets in the My Post page

The media section in the My Post page allows post administrators (or their designates) to manage directly the list of local media they are using within the MAT system.

How are media outlets classified?

Media Outlets in MAT are divided into two distinct categories:

- 1. Local Outlets: *An outlet is local if its target audience is limited to one country.
- 2. Global Outlets: *An outlet is global if a significant part of its target audience is found in more than one country.

The location of the headquarters or a field office of a global outlet in a particular country does not make an outlet local. As a general rule, outlets that are thought of as being regional or global in nature should be included in the global list and not be placed in the list of local outlets.

The purpose behind this division is to minimize duplication of media outlets as much as possible by making all outlets a shared resource and clearly distinguishing those in the global list whose intended audiences go beyond country borders. Note that local media lists will be managed locally while the global media list will be managed in Washington with Media Hub and Post input. As a shared resource, however, media outlets “claimed” as local outlets by specific posts will be accessible for inclusion on individual post lists in any country in the world. Updates to local outlets, however, will only be carried out by users in the responsible country.

We understand that it is not always easy to differentiate a global outlet from a local media source. For example, a local radio station may be carried through the internet to countries not normally within the broadcast range of that station, although its primary audience is within the borders of one country (which is where it should be listed). Also listed as a local outlet would be a radio or TV station that is based in a country, is directed at the population of that country, and simply “bleeds” over the border into a neighboring country.

We recognize that some outlets will fall into a gray area. In addition to the definitions above, another general rule of thumb for identifying if an outlet should be identified as global is if you can foresee another country also considering placing the outlet on a local list. This outlet would, therefore, be placed on the global list to avoid duplication.

Media outlets are further categorized as Print, Radio, TV or Web. We are considering creating a fifth category, news agency/wire, and will be investigating its inclusion in a future release. News agencies are a unique media category that overlaps considerably with the four main media types and are not that easily distinguished from the others. Please email any outlet(s) that do not fit within the categories provided to MATinfo@state.gov.

Who can manage media outlets?

All posts administrators are granted the privilege to manage media outlets. Post administrators should also grant this privilege/role to the Information Officer(s), if available, at their post and/or country and any other users as determined by the PAO. Users with this privilege/role are responsible for managing the media list and ensuring its accuracy. Please note that media outlet lists are country, not post, specific. For instance, there will be one Media outlet list for Turkey, which both Ankara and Istanbul can customize.

How can we update the Media outlet list?

The MAT media list was originally drawn from IIP’s Media Matrix database, but has grown significantly with post additions. Members of the MAT team, with Hub input, worked to divide a list of over 5000 media outlets currently employed in MAT into global and local outlets. Preliminary Global and Local media lists have been developed and will be displayed in MAT with this release. There are known data quality issues with these lists, such as duplication, that we will endeavor to improve, but we will need your input to ensure efficient and accurate updates.

Users are encouraged to update their media outlet list to ensure they can easily and accurately report on their media activities. Below, please find recommended steps:

- 1. Review all outlets listed in your country for accuracy
- 2. Update all necessary information including all required fields (marked with an asterisk). All required fields must be completed or the media outlet information will not be saved.
- 3. Identify any duplicate outlets and email MATinfo@state.gov with the outlet name and media type (print, radio, TV, web).
- 4. Ensure that all outlets listed under your local list are in fact local outlets as defined above. If any outlets currently in your local list meet the criteria to be classified as a global outlet, please provide the outlet name and type (print, radio, TV, web) to MATinfo@state.gov.

Please do keep in mind that updating this list will be an on-going collaborative process with the Hubs and Posts. Your feedback has and will continue to help build the foundation for media reporting in MAT. Over time, with training, guidance and collaboration the media list can be improved and will become increasingly useful.

In Appendix 1 you will find a list of fields asked of Print, TV, Web, Radio media outlets. In Appendix 2 you will find step-by-step instructions on managing the media outlets.

II. Reporting on Interview/Press Conference Activities

Shortly following this release, new/updated questions will be included in the Interview/Press conference activity type. These new questions will enrich the quality and usefulness of reporting.
